Nutrient Depletion

Many common medications deplete the body of key nutrients. Adding an OTC supplement can mitigate side effects, increasing the likelihood of prescription medication adherence.

Flu Vaccinations

The CDC recommends most individuals ages six months and over receive a flu shot every year. The EnlivenHealth® Vaccinations report identifies patients that haven't received their flu shot, so that you can easily reach out to encourage a vaccination.

Naloxone

The naloxone report identifies patients that recently filled two or more C2 opioids, each with a over a nine-day supply. It's highly recommended that patients taking such medications have naloxone in their possession. From the report, you can print a handout to inform your patients about naloxone, emphasising its availability without a patient-specific prescription.

OTC Birthday Promo

The EnlivenHealth® OTC Birthday Promo report identifies all patients whose birthday falls on the current day, three days prior, or three days after the report is run. You can print a handout with a personalized note wishing these patients a happy birthday, along with an OTC supplement coupon to drive foot traffic to your store and increase revenue.
